

Marsh Family Lawsuit

Friday, 03 March 2006

Mar 3, 2006

The Marsh family and funeral homes involved in the Tri-State Crematory scandal are once again back in court. Walker County is suing the family and the funeral homes for 2-million dollars.

That's about how much county officials estimate they spent on the crematory investigation.

The defendants, of course, want the case dismissed.

But County attorney Larry Hill says they're all responsible...adding the funeral homes were contractually obligated to make sure the bodies were properly cremated.

The judge will decide whether the lawsuit will go to a jury.

http://www.wdef.com/servlet/Satellite?pagename=WDEF/MGArticle/DEF_BasicArticle&c=MGArticle&cid=1137834490674&path=